
Title: The Invisible Hand

Author: Crofton

I was making my way southwest through the forrests by Trinsic on my way to the Trinsic Cave.
I heard some rustling
when a red solen warrior started running towards me. In a panic I ran away from the city deeper into the forrest. Finally loosing the solen I realized I was lost. I meandered my way till I came to a large blocky white house. I jarred open the front doors and walked inside. I proceded across the marble floors to the symbols. The Symbol took me all the way to the top of the structure where I saw a training are for every skill imaginable. There was an anvil and forge, oven,
loom and wheel,
instruments, and even training dummies. I moved to the other symbol and it took me down a level.
A beautiful green marble floored den with a
staffed bar and a reflecting pond in the middle. I went over to the barkeep and greeted
"Julian" and the kind enough fellow greeted me back. I ordered a cold ale and drank it without hesitation. I said "Thank You and he wished me a good day. I gave him a tip and he confided in me that the guild was looking for loyal members. He said I should seek out Doric Kala. I asked him about "Doric" and he gave me his private contact. I calmly raised from the barstool and stood upon the symbol. Descending another level I seen a rather closed off area that I could not access. I did hear some muttering but could not make it

out. I slowly backed away and down to the first floor passed the stable, out the doors. and into the brush. Looking at the sign I saw OIH: Order of the Invisible Hand. I
continued straight SW
and came right to the southern tip of the mountain that has the Trinsic Cave. I walked in and made it safely to Deluccia. Suddenly a robed figure approached me and said in a low tone "We know who you are. Help the Invisible Hand and the Hand will help you." Before I could see the individual she disappeared in the crowd around the bank. I have not heard anything since but I am sure I haven't heard the last
from them.